

Team USA Volleyball Player Taylor Crabb Tests Positive for Coronavirus

There are more and more cases of athletes testing positive for coronavirus ahead of the Olympics in Tokyo.

Taylor Crabb, 29, is now one of the latest names to have reportedly tested positive, via NBC News.

The Team USA volleyball player recently tested positive for COVID-19, resulting in possibly missing out on the Olympics entirely. He will be replaced by Tri Bourne, who arrived in Japan this week, via the Orange County Register.

“The health and safety of our athletes, coaches and staff is our top priority. We can confirm that a member of Team USA tested positive upon their arrival into Japan,” USA Volleyball said in a statement to CNN.

His brother, volleyball player Trevor Crabb, said his brother is “fine and healthy and should be allowed to play,” while describing the situation as “terrible” to NBC LA.

Find out which other star player also withdrew from the Olympics amid testing positive.

Originally found on Just Jared Read More